CANADIANA

THE deep current of Canadian history moving through three centuries has carried on its flood tide countless diaries, intimate letters, biographies, reminiscences and state documents which were the living chronicles of their time.

But the ever-moving tide of generations has swept vast quantities of this rich substance down to oblivion. Diaries, unappreciated by contemporaries, are discarded and lost. Letters, often the richest of historical sources, are put aside and forgotten or crumble with brittle age. Even books, famous in their day, have been literally read out of existence. So, passing of time has left only comparative fragments of the casual or deliberate writings of those who went before us in the making of Canada.

Pictures, unlike the written word, seem to have survived the restless movements of generations. The artist perhaps is fortunate in having his work framed and sometimes under glass to be set up for display, while the writer is inevitably destined to have his effort placed on a shelf, if not in a cupboard, where its life depends only on the fallibility of human memory.

In Canada's story, exploration, conquest and settlement absorbed for many decades the energies of the people. Though cultural efforts were for two hundred years limited in their scope they were never entirely absent, and throughout the entire period there were artists working with quiet absorption on their subjects. For the most part these men received only a cursory recognition from their fellow-countrymen. The hands of men were upon the sword or the plough and the pioneer community could tolerate but could hardly foster the artist. Many of these men came from abroad; soldiers, engineers, scholars or travellers who carried sketch books or canvases with them only for diversion. Some undoubtedly worked with pen and brush with a consciousness of history, and their pictures which have survived reveal a deep interest in the physical surroundings of life in New France and later in British America. A few of these artists found recognition for their work in Europe, particularly in Great Britain, where there was a growing interest in the rising power of the Empire overseas. The rapid improvements of the printing crafts made possible the reproduction of some of the best work of the traveller-artists, and they stand to-day as superb examples of engraving and lithography. The output of pictures by American publishers about 1830 frequently included Canadian scenes, and while the accuracy in colour reproduction was not always equal to the European workmanship they are none the less valuable for their portrayal of contemporary life and for the fact that they were part of the early efforts in colour print on this side of the Atlantic.

The collection of old prints, engravings, maps, oil paintings and water-colours now hanging on the walls of the Manoir Richelieu at Murray Bay represents an endeavour to assemble the finest work of those artists who captured for all time in their pictures something of the colour and movement of Canada's early days. The collection includes the work of some modern artists who, with a feeling for the past, have succeeded in re-creating significant events, or historic settings which have been obliterated by the ravages of time. The collection has been brought together not only for the pleasure and edification of people of our own time, but for those who, in generations to come, will inherit a deep reverence for the rich and colourful story of the Dominion of Canada.

50a ADMIRAL SIR CHARLES SAUNDERS, K.B. Commander-in-Chief of the Naval Forces at Quebec, 1759. Oil painting. Artist unknown.

At the time of his appointment to the head of the naval forces to co-operate with General Wolfe in the capture of Quebec, he was member of Parliament for Plymouth, and the same year saw his promotion to the rank of Vice-Admiral of the Navy. He sailed from Spithead and having waited at Halifax until the St. Lawrence was free of ice entered the river in the beginning of June. Toward the end of the month the fleet arrived in the neighbourhood of Quebec without mishap to the 22 ships and transports, conveying 8,100 troops for Wolfe's proposed operations. An incident of the siege is depicted in the left hand corner of the painting in which the fleet was engaged in the successful dispersal of the second attempt on July 28th, 1759, by the French to destroy the fleet. On this occasion the enemy floated down the stream about 100 rafts loaded with combustibles, but by the skilful exertions of the boats of the squadron the design was frustrated. The painting is undoubtedly a version of the portrait of the Admiral in the Painted Hall of Greenwich Hospital by Richard Brompton (died 1782), but carries also the family arms which are not shewn in the Greenwich portrait. (See Nos. 50 and 1130).

96a DEATH OF GENERAL WOLFE. Engr. after the painting by A. Chappel. Illus.

The painting was specially commissioned for the New York publishing house of Johnson Fry & Co. about 1856. (See No. 96.)

151 Correct Title:—CARDINAL MAZARIN.

472-7 SET OF NIAGARA PRINTS after the drawings by Lieut. Col. Cockburn are first edition of 1833.

505a QUEENSTON, OR THE LANDING BETWEEN LAKE ONTARIO AND LAKE ERIE. Aqt. in col. by "I. W." Illus. 1799. (See No. 505).

These two prints are from sketches made by Isaac Weld who reproduced same in his book "Travels Through The States of North America and the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada during the Years 1795-96-97."

564 Correct Title, THE QUEBEC DRIVING CLUB, MEETING AT THE PLACE d'ARMES, is humbly dedicated by permission to the Rt. Honourable the Earl of Dalhousie, Patron of the Club. Line engr. by J. Smillie after a sketch by William Wallace, Ensign 74th Light Infantry. Pub. by D. Smillie & Sons, Quebec. 1826.

630a INDIAN SQUAWS OF LOWER CANADA, MONTREAL. Litho. in col. by C. G. Crehen after C. Kreighoff. Pub. by John McCoy, Great St. James St. (Montreal) 1848. (See Nos 625-630).

1120 Add:—Peter Livius (1727-1795) was appointed Chief Justice of the Province of Quebec and held office from 1777 to 1786. He took strong exception to Governor Sir Guy Carleton K.B. arrogating to himself more arbitrary powers than his commission seemed to warrant, even refusing to communicate to the Council the King's instructions. The Chief Justice made certain motions in Council which gave great offence to the Governor, who retaliated by removing Livius from office. He appealed to the King and was finally restored to his former position.

1134 Add:—From a litho. by C. Ingreby.

1137a KEY TO 'THE FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION'. Photostat. 1931.
(See No. 1137).

Presented by the Research & Publicity Division of the Public Archives of Canada.

1379 CANADA WARBLER.

1478a HAMILTON, CANADA WEST, FROM THE MOUNTAIN. Litho. in
col. by Endicott & Co. after E. Whitefield. Plate No. 29. 1854. (See Nos. 1476-1483).

1507a GENERAL VIEW OF THE CITY OF TORONTO U.C. Litho. by H.
Currier after T. Young, Architect. (See No. 1507).

1509 Add:—Edward Walsh, who drew this view of Montreal, was appointed Surgeon in the 49th Regiment, August 28, 1800, and was stationed in Montreal in 1803.

1570-94 These numbers have been cancelled and the items included in the

FROM "THE ATLANTIC NEPTUNE". Aqts. in monotone and col. by Joseph Frederick Wallet Des Barres (1721-1824). He arrived in America in 1756 with a commission as Lieutenant in the "Royal American Regiment of Foot", immediately organized a corps of field artillery. In 1757 he served under Lord Howe against the French on Lake George and made a report of the enemy's fortified position at Ticonderoga. He accompanied his Battalion and was present in 1858 at the fall of Louisbourg. In the following year Des Barres was chosen to accompany General Wolfe as an engineer in the campaign against Quebec, and in this connection prepared a large scale chart of the St. Lawrence. Following the close of the war in 1763 he was called to New York by General Amherst and loaned to the Admiralty to make charts of the Atlantic coast. For ten years he made surveys and charts, drawings and sketches and in 1774 returned to England where he commenced another decade in the completion of his monumental and artistically illustrated work "The Atlantic Neptune". Editions were issued in 1777, 1780, 1781 and 1784. He was appointed Lieut.-Governor of Cape Breton in 1784, and promoted Colonel 1798. (See Nos. 52-62 and 1567).

- 1 BRIGADIER JAMES MURRAY. Three quarters length portrait in oils by A. Sherriff Scott (1929) after the painting in the Public Archives of Canada.

General James Murray (1719-1794) distinguished himself at Louisberg, 1758 and in the expedition against Quebec, 1759. Following the surrender he became commander. He defended Quebec against the French in their efforts to reconquer the city 1760 and was appointed Governor the same year. He was raised to the rank of Major-General 1762 and was Governor of Canada 1763-6.

Of local interest was the issuance of grants of land, dividing the old Seigneurie of Malbaie, by General Murray in 1762, to two officers who had served with distinction in the Fraser Highlanders under General James Wolfe. Captain John Nairne received the lands west of the re-named Murray River and Malcolm Fraser the lands to the east.

- 2 BILL OF EXCHANGE. Dated, Quebec 13th Feby. 1765 for £1875-0-0 in favour of Mr. Ettinne Charest, drawn on George Ross, Conduit St. London by Jas. Murray. Presented by Dr. J. Clarence Webster, Shediac, N.B. A rare autograph of General James Murray.
- 3 HIS MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY KING GEORGE, THE THIRD (1738-1820). Stip. by Benjamin Smith after the painting by Sir William Beechey, R.A.
- 4 SUITE DE LA CARTE REDUITE DU GOLPHE DE ST. LAURENT, etc. Engr. by Mr. Bellin, 1753.

A chart of the coast of Labrador and the Strait of Belle Isle and Northern coast of Newfoundland.

GROUP OF WATER COLOUR DRAWINGS BY LIEUT.-COLONEL JAMES PATTISON COCKBURN (1779-1847). This artist came to Canada with the Royal Artillery in 1823, which he subsequently was appointed to command in 1826. During the period of his garrison duties he made a large number of sketches. Returning to England about 1836, he was appointed Director of the Royal Laboratory of Woolwich, 1838, until his promotion to Major-General, four months before his death. Besides his water colour drawings, of which the collection is particularly rich, he produced a set of six aquatints in cols. of Niagara Falls, and a similar set of Quebec and the district. Both sets were published by Ackerman & Co. in 1833. In 1929 another set of six of his drawings of old Quebec were reproduced in colour from the original drawings, and in 1930 a further set of seven views of Montreal.

This insurrection was started by a body calling themselves "The Sons of Liberty." On November 6th 1837 a meeting was held at which Mr. Papineau presided, and after a short debate it was resolved that a confederation of six counties should be formed at St. Charles, on the Richelieu, which should there raise the cap and plant the tree of liberty. An attack on the Royalists was the immediate consequence of this meeting, which, with the assistance of a body of Constitutionalists styling themselves "The Doric Club" ended in the dispersion of the assailants.

A dramatic representation of the well known incident when Columbus pleaded before the Spanish court for assistance in his project of a westward voyage to India, which was refused. Queen Isabella however came to his assistance and equipped the expedition of discovery. Christopher Columbus (1446-1506) was a native of Genoa. His first expedition resulted in the discovery of the Bahamas in the West Indies, 12th October 1492. Other voyages were made to the New World in 1498, when he first touched the mainland of America, and again in 1502.

CANADIAN SCENERY

A series of col. engrs. after the drawings of W. H. Bartlett used to illus. "Canadian Scenery." 1840. William Henry Bartlett (1809-1854) was a remarkable topographical draughtsman, and was employed by John Britton, the English architect, to make sketches in the old world for architectural publications. Later he became associated with George Virtue, the publisher, and travelled in Europe, Asia and America sketching for various topographical works which were in the style of these prints. He was in Canada for some months in the late 'thirties and covered all the principal settlements between Halifax and Niagara Falls, securing a pictorial record unsurpassed by any artist before or since.

969 ST. MALO, France. Orig. oil painting by Gyrth Russell (1929).

St. Malo, Brittany, the history of which goes back to the early middle ages, became a town of some note in the twelfth century. In the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries it played an important part in French maritime activities. Jacques Cartier, a native of this historic town, sailed from St. Malo on 20th April 1534 when he explored the Gulf of St. Lawrence; and on May 19th 1535, when he discovered the St. Lawrence river and ascended it as far as what is now the Island of Montreal; and again on May 23rd 1541, when an unsuccessful attempt was made to found a Colony in Canada.

970 HONFLEUR, France. Orig. painting by Gyrth Russell (1929).

Honfleur, Normandy, was founded about the middle of the eleventh century, and in the sixteenth and the first half of the seventeenth centuries was one of the most important sea-ports of France. Its mariners took a leading part in exploration and trade, both in America and the East Indies. Champlain sailed from Honfleur on the 13th April, 1608, on the expedition which led to the founding of Quebec.

AUDUBON PRINTS

A SELECTION FROM "THE BIRDS OF AMERICA." COL. AQTS. FROM ORIG. DRAWINGS BY JOHN JAMES AUDUBON, ENGRAVED BY W. H. LIZARS, ROBERT HAVELL & SON AND ROBERT HAVELL JR. Pub. 1827-1838.

J. J. Audubon (1785-1851) was born at Les Cayes, Santo Domingo, educated in France and migrated to the United States in 1803. Naturalist and artist he conceived and executed a monumental hand coloured work of the bird life of the American continent. The portfolios numbered over 435 plates, containing 1065 individual specimens, together with descriptive letter-press. The undertaking covered a period of 12 years. During which he travelled extensively on the continent to secure specimens, which in turn had to be mounted and sketches made; beside making trips across the Atlantic to England where the engraved work was executed and printed. As will be noted in the prints, great care has been exercised in painting the backgrounds, many of which depict scenes along the river and gulf of the St. Lawrence and Labrador coast, the habitat of such bird life as geese, ducks, gulls, cormorants, etc. In his own diary he refers to his visit to this part of the coast line of Canada in the summer of 1833. Audubon with the assistance of his son J.W., also did a series of plates of wild animal life between the year 1842-8 which were litho. in col. by J. T. Bowen.

GROUP OF WATERCOLOUR DRAWINGS AND COLOURED ETCHED PLATES BY JAMES PEACHEY. 1781-1785. During his residence in Canada for a priod of some ten years, James Peachey made a number of highly interesting drawings, now extremely scarce, of Quebec, Niagara Falls etc. He was attached to the office of Samuel Holland, Surveyor-General about the year 1781, and afterwards appointed Deputy Surveyor-General. He was appointed Ensign in the 60th Regiment Royal Americans October 3rd 1787. Afterwards transferred to the 7th Foot as Lieutenant, 1793 and promoted Captain, 1795. Besides his artistic ability as displayed in water-colours and portraits he left behind him a record of plans and maps of several places in Lower Canada.
